

7th day

Dear Peter,

Two more accounts for the Citroens, making four so far - as follows

1057.25

468.75

481.25

718.75

2726.00

I also paid Bruce $248.00 for some 50 lb weights, which are now holding down the carpet in your old bedroom. I propose to re-imburse myself to the tune of $2974.00 from your account, which still leaves the problem of getting the weights etc up to you.

Ernie has been keeping an eye on the Citroens, as far as he is able to do, and I must try to get over and see it. Are you sure that you don't want to save your money and buy a new Mercedes instead?

○ We have been minding Beth and David this week whilst Jimmy and Bill have a touring holiday around Mildura & other parts. Mum took a week off and has borne the brunt of it. I have been trying to get away from work early to help. I think that Mum was tempted to take them to the Bacchus Marsh lion park today and wind the windows down, but with only one day to go we might just last out. They are quite good kids really, but they demand constant attention and we are getting a bit old for it. We can't even send them in next door to play.

We have fixed up our holidays. We leave Melbourne on Thursday 18th June and fly to Copenhagen via Athens. After a couple of days there we pick up a tour going through Norway and Sweden, arriving back in Copenhagen on 2nd July. We meander from there down to Amsterdam and meet a further tour in Amsterdam on Monday 6th July. This takes us through Holland, Germany, Austria, Yugoslavia and Greece back to Athens. We do a quick run around a few Greek islands, hop back on the plane, and should arrive back in the early morning of Sunday 26th July. We have the remainder of the day off before returning to work on Monday 27th July. Sounds a nice restful holiday.

Jan and Ronie have also had this week off and headed towards Adelaide. We haven't heard from them but presume they made it in the old Volvo. The Renault is having a little clutch trouble at present.

Love,

Paul.
