Dear Peter, we have been writing our usual have to be done. I don't know if it circulates as far north as Emerald.

Earlier this afternoon we walked down the sheet shown on the card. Our photos will of course come out a lot better than this.
We have now left the spectacular Rockies scenery and are staying overnight in this cattle and oil town before flying on to meet your middle-aged brother's family tomorrow.

The tour has worked out very well so far, although the weather hasn't been too good apart from the first few days. It rained up again today and we are now heading for better spots.

We can thoroughly recommend the Banff Springs Hotel if you don't mind dressing for dinner.

Earlier today we went up Sulphur Mountain in a gondola - the type that hangs from a wire rope up in the air - not the Venice sort. There had been a fresh snow-fall and all the trees (pines, firs, spruces etc) were covered like the Christmas card variety. No view from the town due to a low cloud, but I did get to meet a mountain goat face-to-face.
